DETAILED ACTION

Information Disclosure Statement

1. The information disclosure statement filed 10/24/05 has been considered and made of record.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 9-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Goto (JP 2003-119578).
4. Goto teaches low-friction materials comprising CuO formed on a substrate (abstract, for instance). The films may be formed by the same method as disclosed in the subject specification, i.e., magnetron sputtering (Goto, Detail Description, paragraph 14). Further, Goto teaches that the films may be crystalline, and, thus, "oriented" as recited in claims 13 and 14. Goto fails to teach that the films have friction coefficients of 0.06 or less at both atmospheric and in a vacuum, as claimed. The single example in Goto teaches films having friction coefficients of 0.06 at atmospheric pressure (to one significant digit) and slightly greater than 0.06 under vacuum. However, to optimize the films of Goto to achieve a desired, low friction coefficient would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art. Given the disclosure of Goto regarding the film composition and methods of making the films, such endeavor would involve no more than routine experimentation and considered to be well within the level of ordinary skill in the art.

5. In light of the above, it is the Examiner's position that the present claims are obvious in view of Goto.
